To Whom It May Concern,

Eric Uyemura was a Full-Stack Web Developer in our internship program at ViziSites from January 7th, 2019 to February 1st, 2019. His responsibilities included building impressive website modules and different DOM elements. The elements were built with responsiveness to scale and look great on any devices viewport. At different points in his internship, he was exposed to technologies he hadn't worked with before. He took this as an opportunity and showed he was a fast learner with the ability to start adding value to the team.

During his time at ViziSites, Eric proved himself to be a dependable developer and a hard worker with fantastic problem solving skills. It was enjoyable to see that he faces his work with dedication and persistence. Eric would be an asset to have on any team.

Overall, Eric is a talented, hard-working developer. This is an individual who we would recommend receiving an opportunity at a company for continuous career growth.

Sincerely,

Jesse Davis
